If you have much US correspondence I suggest you do as I do, type or print. I also have poor handwriting. I'm not at all sure about your name.

But I write because I do not consider letters of concern, like the one you wrote, at all nutty. Not that I don't get some that are!

There is a real problem with books on the assassination for the average person/reader: Knowing what is and is not responsible and deciding whether or not the books of conjecture are based upon real fact.

Of the books you mention the two best, and very fine they are, are Meagher's and Roffman's, both also out of print. Neither is still active in the field and while Roffman is young, as Meagher is not, he stays so busy I rarely hear from him. He is now a lawyer on the west coast.

It is impossible for me to bring you up to date on my work but I do keep a list of those who express interest and if and when I am able to publish more they will all be informed. In your case, please send me a legible name and address if you want to receive any notice.

I have do no work on the RFK case and I know of no really responsivle book. However, a young friend of the late Allard Lowenstein, who was interested, has taken steps under the Freedom of Information Act to obtain official records and he does plan a book.

You ask about public response to my work. It has been almost entirely fine and encouraging and I guess at least 15,000 strangers have written me. (Can you imagine the time away from work responses take?)

Executive Action is a cheap commercialization of a CIA disinformation work aimed at confusion within the US. It is fiction, created by the French counterpart of CIA and then ripped off by Mark Lane and Don Freed, whose movie connections got it out.

There was no FPCC involvement of nay kind.

I did not publish Oswald in New Orleans, and it is out of print and I think costly. I've obtained a few copies, which are $25.00 plus postage, and that is rather much for a book that was only 95¢ to begin with.

Thanks for writing and please escuse my haste.

Sincerely,
